

You need to book your company's next retreat, workshop or conference. You're so done with impersonal corporate chains whose idea of a "private meeting room" is a partition between you and adjacent groups. (Last month your attendees just loved the next-door session on pressing issues in molecular biology.)

You're looking for a great B&B-style weekend getaway—not another cookie-cutter hotel "deal" complete with sound effects by the party-all-night crew in the next room.
